

country. And as has been pointed out by my former colleague in the Senate, Congressman TOM BARRETT, no one in the Wisconsin State Legislature has starved to death because of the gift ban.

Well, Mr. President, there are several of us who are determined to bring this practice to an end. Acting on a tough gift ban will fundamentally reform the way Congress deals with the many gifts and other perks that are offered to members each year, and would mark a sea change in the way Washington, D.C. does business.

But we need to do more than simply pass though gift ban legislation. We need to strengthen our current lobbying disclosure laws that are riddled with gaping loopholes. We need to shut down the revolving door that allows public officials to trade on their government experience and contracts for lucrative post-employment in the private sector.

But most importantly, Mr. President, most importantly we need to pass comprehensive campaign finance reform that will level the playing field between incumbents and challengers, and diminish the role of special interest money that has come to dominate our election system. It is my sincere hope that this body will begin this process of reform by acting on this measure at the earliest possibility.

These are all links in a chain of special interest influence that is wrapped around the U.S. Capitol. Each link of the chain must be broken and this would mark a dramatic first step.
